Trolley Car Strikes Local Man's Cab and Crushes It, Also the Driver's Head.

Some Towns and Villages Wiped Out; Business Buildings and Churches Razed in Others; Accurate Estimates of Deaths and Injuries Lovable.

By Associated Press

MEXICO CITY, Jan 5.—Ten states were shaken by an earthquake which on Saturday night destroyed at least two villages and caused many deaths in the state of Vera Cruz. The states were Mexico, Puebla, Vera Cruz, Oaxaca, Guerrero, Morelos, Jalisco, Zacatecas, Hidalgo and Queretaro. The destruction from the isthmus of Tehuantepec in a northward direction for a distance of nearly 3,000 miles and from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific reports received late last night picked up.

According to his brother Andrew, the unfortunate man was at the trolley office here at 12 o'clock at which time Andrew left. The belief is that reported killed beneath their wrecked houses. Shocks came during a performance at the theater at Olinala, a point beyond No. 1. He was returning when he was killed. The car was crushed to splinters and the driver buried several feet away. He was dead when picked up by Frank Freyman and William McBurney, the men of the trolley car crew who brought the body to Connellsville. It was removed to J. L. Sims' undertaker near Tejula about 2 miles southwest of Mexico City, but recent advance state the shucks were not severe there.

While telegrams last night from the state of Vera Cruz where the quake was more severe stated that while scores had perished accurate estimates of the casualties cannot be made. The center of the seismic convolution was in the neighborhood of Mt. Orizaba, a volcano situated about 70 miles west of Vera Cruz on the line between the states of Vera Cruz and Puebla. It was in this neighborhood that the most serious damage was done. Pecamo, a village 3½ miles northeast of the volcano has been virtually destroyed and a similar fate befell Coulon. The town was torn down by the violence of the disturbance. It is stated there were many casualties in both.

Many houses and churches in Jalapa a city about 50 miles northwest of Vera Cruz were damaged while reports from Orizaba a city 10 miles south of the volcano state that several business blocks and churches near the center of the town were destroyed.

JUDGE DECLINES GOWN

Setting of Gown Democratic is New Allegheny County Jurist.

By Associated Press

PITTSBURG, Jan 5.—All judges in the Allegheny county courts did all appear in gowns with one exception of Judge Brown. He refused to adhere to the rule recently adopted by the other judges on the ground that the wearing of gowns in courts is undemocratic and tends to make people farther from the court instead of bringing them closer together.

There is no law to compel me to wear a gown, Judge Brown is quoted as saying when commenting in the courtroom.

SUNDAY EVENING, JAN. 5, 1920.

TIME TO ACT AND ACT VIGOROUSLY.

The information gained by federal agents as the tasks upon which the wholesale arrest of radicals has been made bears out all the predictions made some months ago, as to the leaders by whom the country and reputable labor organizations were being confronted through the strikes and other disorders that were occurring with an unusual frequency. When Syndicalist Foster and his radical assistants inaugurate the steel strike the warning was sounded if the efforts the radical element in the ranks of labor was making to break from within for the purpose of turning the labor organizations into instruments for the propagation of the doctrines of socialism in America. The discovery among the literature at the headquarters of the radicals of the "manifesto and program" emphasizes the warnings previously given concerning the objects and purposes of the intense activity of the so-called "leaders" of the unrest movement. By the same means they disclosed the plans of the Communist and Communist Labor parties for systematically inciting a series of small strikes which were to be developed into a general strike or "mass action." The plan in detail was to expand "small strikes" into minor mass strikes, from minor mass strikes to general strikes and from general strikes to the dictatorship of the proletarian through revolution.

The members of these radical organizations were admonished to engage in the struggle "to raze unionize the trade unions," and pledge themselves to participate in all mass strikes, not so much to achieve the ends of the particular strike, but to further "the program of revolution."

The aim was not to secure higher wages through collective bargaining, but to bring about the overthrow of the present political-economic system. These organizations were planning to take advantage of every situation that might arise, such as the steel and coal strikes, the government's legal action against the miners at the leaders, and other opportunity, for the spread of unrest with the ultimate end in view of organizing a revolution for the overthrow of all government.

In view of the seditious purposes of the anarchistic element which is striving to employ labor organizations as tools for furthering their evil designs, it is time these organizations and the American people understand the real purposes of these menacing groups and the nature of the poison they were spreading. It is time, too, for every loyal citizen, whether a member of a labor organization or not, to stand up and be counted as the bitter and unrelenting foe of every form of propaganda of disorder and violence which these disciples of Russian socialism are seeking to spread. We must give this band of radicals to understand that no such unholy doctrines and practices shall have root much less flourish in the free soil of America.

It is time for every man, American to back the government to the limit, as it is time for the government to go the limit, in ridding our land of the greatest menace to our free institutions that has yet dared rear its ugly head.

The snake in Mexico ought to serve as a warning to Carranza of the kind of trouble in footsteps in the virgin land being shown in "Coraline The United States."

Victor Berger says he will carry the Socialist flag either to Congress or to the White House. He should do it, since with 130,000,000 very friendly people he should afford him a speedy welcome as an intimate of the latter.

An opportunity will now be given the men who have had all plaudits to stage a demonstration of their "boiling from within" methods as applied to prison walls.

Fortunately there is no limit upon the size of the bug the hunters of "cells" make in a day.

Fuel Shortage.

Boston Times said: "An English schoolboy wrote: 'England has much coal, but she needs it down on her administration. The coal-hunting objectives from Edsel Ford on up are still as high for the coal as ever.'

Calamitous Effects of The Excess Profits Tax

Manufacturers Record.

There will be universal agreement with Secretary Glass' declaration that the excess-profits tax "encourages wasteful expenditure, puts a premium on overcapitalization and a penalty on brains, energy, and enterprise, discourages new ventures and confirms old ventures in their monopolies." In many instances it acts as a consumption tax, is added to the cost of production upon which profits are figured in determining prices, and has maintained, so long as it is maintained, upon the statute books, continue to be a material factor in the increased cost of living.

The Manufacturers Record has repeatedly pointed out the "inanity" of the excess-profits tax. It probably more than any other one thing, is responsible for the high cost of living in its most aggravated form. It is not only a consumption tax—it is sometimes a consumption tax multiplied eight times.

But it is not clear that the solution of the difficulty is so simple as the Secretary suggests. He would substitute for the excess-profits tax an increase of the "normal" income tax. We are in favor of a wide distribution of the cost of government. The taxpayer is wealthier than the non-taxpayer. Non-tax pay attention to the extravagant expenditure of their master at Washington when the payment of taxes is a real burden on their shoulders. Heavy individual taxation might be a factor in bringing about that economy of which the nation is so fearfully in need.

But on the other hand, Americans are not accustomed to being taxed by the tax collector. Exorbitant taxation breeds unrest and revolution. The tax power is the powder magazine of organized government. It explodes if it is not handled.

Nonetheless it is clear that sufficient revenue would flow into the treasury under the proposed arrangement. Estimates having been made on that point, no doubt, but estimates are very seldom correct.

Leaders in Congress, we understand, have about made up their minds to simplify the method of making tax returns of all kinds, so that the ordinary citizen will not have to hire a firm of lawyers to tell him how to file his return, but they will not attempt to change the system of taxation.

They are afraid to do so. The money requirements are so huge that experimentation in income production is not considered wise.

What the government is facing, and knows it is facing, is an inability to meet expenses unless a certain amount of profligacy is permitted. There must be plenty of fat incomes or the treasury will go bankrupt.

There is a way out, but not by subterfuge. The time is coming when Congress will have to tell the people plainly that they must pay for the war and for the unconscionable extravagance of which the government has been guilty, and that they must pay for it either in the form of high prices for everything or by direct contributions to the treasury. What is no more by which the debt can be paid otherwise. It is going to come out of the pockets of the American people, one way or another, and what the name of the tax happens to be does not make much difference.

Secretary Glass meant to say we suspect, was that he wanted all of the tax that was paid to come to the treasury, whereas, the excess-profits tax is sending a part to the treasury and another large part into private pockets.

But the facts all devoutly show that pronouncements from Washington as to an approaching lower cost of living are utterly fallacious. There is no method by which wages can be raised all along the line and taxes increased in every direction and the cost of goods fall. A nation is a powerful organization, but when it tries to live itself by its own bootstraps it presents just as pitiable a spectacle as did the poor individual who first tried that ridiculous experiment.

Looking Backward

Now, of the Past Considered from the Pages of This Courier.

DECEMBER 27, 1888.

Detailed report of the Connellsville coke trade for the week ending December 22 shows a total of 14,751 tons in the region of which 13,800 are in blast and 1,750 tons, showing an estimated production of 110,115 tons.

Christmas of 1888 is memorable on account of the unprecedented weather.

The cold and the snow, the blizzard, the ice, the drifts all proved to show that pronouncements from Washington as to an approaching lower cost of living are utterly fallacious. There is no method by which wages can be raised all along the line and taxes increased in every direction and the cost of goods fall. A nation is a powerful organization, but when it tries to live itself by its own bootstraps it presents just as pitiable a spectacle as did the poor individual who first tried that ridiculous experiment.

From the lips of the ape-man broke a rumbling growl of warning. Numa answered but he did not advance. Instead he stood waving his tail gently to and fro, and presently Tarzan squatted uppa his kill and cut a generous portion from a hind quarter. Numa eyed him with growing resentment and rage as, between mouthfuls, the ape-man growled out his savage warnings. Now this particular lion had never before come in contact with Tarzan of the Apes and he was much mystified. Here was the appearance and the scent of a man-thing and Numa had tasted human flesh and learned that though not the most palatable it was certainly by far the easiest to secure, yet there was that in the bestial growls of the strange creature which reminded him of formidable antagonists and gave him pause, while his hunger and the odor of the hot flesh of Iuru goaded him almost to madness. At last Numa could stand it no longer. His tail shot suddenly erect and 't'was the same instant the wary ape-man, knowing all too well what the signal portended, grasped the remainder of his deer's hind quarter between his teeth and leaped into a nearby tree as Numa charged him with all the speed and a sufficient semblance of the weight of an express train.

Tarzan's retreat was no indiction that he felt fear. Jungle life is ordered along different lines than ours and different standards prevail. Had Tarzan been famished he would, doubtless, have stood his ground and met the lion's charge. He had done the thing before upon more than one occasion, just as in the past he had charged lions himself; but tonight he was far from famished and in the hind quarter he had carried off with him was more raw flesh than he could eat; yes, it was with no equanimity that he looked down upon Numa rending the flesh of Tarzan's kill. The presumption of this strange Numa must be punished! And forthwith Tarzan set out to make life miserable for the big cat. Close by were many trees bearing large, hard fruits and to one of these the ape-man swung with the agility of a squirrel. Then commenced a bombardment which brought forth earth-shaking roars from Numa. It was impossible for the 'awny-ant to cleft under that hall of missiles—he could but roar and groan and dodge and eventually he was driven away entirely from the carcass of Barn, the deer. He went roaring and resentful; but in the very center of the clearing his voice was suddenly hushed and Tarzan saw the great head lower and flatten out, the body crumple and the long tail quiver, as the beast slunk cautiously toward the trees upon the opposite side.

Immediately Tarzan was alert. He lifted his head and sniffed the slow, jungle breeze. What was it that had attracted Numa's attention and taken him soft-footed and silent away from the scene of his discomfiture? Just as the lion disappeared among the trees beyond the clearing Tarzan caught upon the down-couring wind the explanation of his new interest—the scent spoor of man was wafted strongly to the sensitive nostrils. Catching the remainder of the deer's hind quarter moved through the trees, the shadow of a wrath. The savage cat and the savage man saw Numa both born known before it came within the vision of their eyes that it was a black man. Their sensitive nostrils had told them this much and Tarzan's had told him that the scent spoor was that of a stranger—old and a rascal, for race and sex and age each has its own distinctive scent. It was an old man that made his way alone through the gloomy jungle, a wrinkled, dried-up little old man, hideously scarred and tattooed and strangely ga-bed, with the skin of hyena about his shoulders and the dried head mounted upon his gray pate. Tarzan recognized the emblems of the witch-doctor and awaited Numa's charge with a feeling of pleasurable anticipation, for the ape-man had no love for witch-doctors; but to the instant that Numa did charge, the white man suddenly recalled that the lion had stolen his kill a few minutes before and that revenge is sweet.

The first intimation the black man had that he was in danger was the crack of twigs as Numa charged through the bushes into the game trail not twenty yards behind him. Then he turned to see a huge, black-manned lion racing toward him and, even as he turned, Numa seized him. At the same instant the ape-man dropped from an overhanging limb full upon the lion's back and as he struggled he plunged his knife into the tawny side behind the left shoulder, tangled the fingers of his right hand in the long mane, buried his teeth in Numa's neck and wound his powerful arm about time subject to spells of insomnia which would cause me to become run-down, weak and extremely nervous. My appetite was not good and I would be just miserable. I had tried many things but nothing seemed to help. One day I got Dr. Piero's Favorite Prescription and began to take it and I found it to be an excellent medicine for it was the means of building me up and getting me healthy. Since taking it I have taken it and must say for ‘Favorite Prescription’ that it has proved to be all that it claims to be.”

“THE BEST FRIEND A WOMAN CAN HAVE”

Lewiston, Pa.—“Several years ago I was completely broken down. Had spent dollars upon dollars with doctors of every kind. My nerves, stomach, kidneys and whole body seemed entirely out of order. A friend advised me to try Dr. Piero's Favorite Prescription, saying the action on my system was prompt. I was in a very short time, but continued using it until I had used it so long I now feel myself perfectly cured. I keep the ‘Prescription’ in my home nearly all the time as I know it is the best friend a woman can have to depend on in time of need.”

MRS. CHARLES DEMPSEY, 18 E. Water St.

"THE HOODLUM"—Mary Pickford's greatest character, is being shown today and will be repeated tomorrow.

As Amy Burke, Miss Pickford has an unusual role. She is first seen as a spoiled granddaughter of the very wealthy Alexander Guthrie. Then in order to live with her father, who is determined to write a book on sociology, and incidentally to live among the poor, Amy partly informs her grandfather that there is no chance for her to visit Europe with him; she is going to live with her father. Among those whom Amy meets in the segments are Dush Lowry, a little chap with an appetite for hardboiled eggs; William Turner, a struggling artist with a past, not as black as it is painted, and Peter Cooper, a wealthy oil richie whom Amy tries to "frame" for a crap game.

"THE FLIRTING PRINCESS"—Mort Singer's sensational musical comedy star, with Harry Bulger in the leading role, will be presented Friday, January 9. The seat sale will open at the box office Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

The mail orders for seats received to date indicate a keen public interest in this screamingly funny musical show which scored a record run of one solid year at the Vaudeville theatre in Chicago. One of the features of the performance is the bewitching chorus of charming young misses, who are still in their teens. "The Flirting Princess" is said to contain the most costly and luxurious of creations scenically and the costumes, following the art nouveau, are reported to be the most beautiful of creations.
